Text: Last week, I was just lying there, in bed, feeling shivery and hoarse. Thankfully, I didn't catch a cold. I got a call from my firstborn, who had just started a new venture selling pens and paper, and stuff like that. He said the bank had withheld the payment, and it really bothered him. At least he had portable equipment to deal with the situation. As far as I know, the same management was responsible for the delay. Hopefully, things will improve soon. Somehow, all of it was worth the experience.

Questions (2 points each):

1. What was the narrator feeling while lying in bed?
2. Who called the narrator?
3. What was the new venture about?
4. What problem did the narrator's firstborn face?
5. What does the narrator hope for?
