

Junk food

Fancy a bite? McDonald's Burger bought in Utah in 1999, looks exactly the same as the day it was first cooked (even after it spent two years in a COAT POCKET).

If you need a reason to get rid of the junk food habit this should be enough.

Utah man David Whipple has managed to keep a hamburger from McDonald's since 1999. The extraordinary part isn't the fact that he didn't throw the burger out though, it's that the burger doesn't look like it has aged.

Appearing by phone on the TV show recently, David Whipple explained that the burger was discovered many years ago in his coat pocket and it looked the same then as it does now.

Whipple told the TV show that he bought it years ago for an experiment on enzymes and how they work.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rkkeTFFmpeY&t=8s>

